PREFACE.

THE good opinion which the Public were pleased to entertain of the ROYAL KALENDAR last year, and the extraordinary encouragement given to it, have induced the Editor to make several additional improvements, by which, and the very great care he has taken to have every part as correct as possible, he hopes the ROYAL KALENDAR will again appear worthy of their esteem and support. Among the many additions, which are this year made, will be immediately found the following.—The ARMS, with SUPPORTERS, CRESTS, and MOTTOES of the PEERS of SCOTLAND and IRELAND, which, with those of ENGLAND, (now also given,) form a complete POCKET PEERAGE of the THREE KINGDOMS; and is of itself a compendious, useful work: And for the conveniency of finding any Nobleman's arms immediately, there is a complete index to the plates.—The whole Establishment of America, properly arranged, a great part of which was never before printed, although now become as interesting as any other List. In the List of the House of Commons, is added to the names of each town and county, the supposed number of persons qualified to vote for members of parliament in those places; and the number of parliaments each member has sat. Under the Excise is added the Collectors of excise in England and Wales. To the Establishment of Ireland, is added the Baronets of that kingdom, which was never printed in England before. We have also given the Foreign princes, and the Lieutenants of the Navy, which were omitted last year. So that, upon the whole, it is presumed, the ROYAL KALENDAR will this year be found the most complete and correct book of the kind ever printed in Great-Britain.

Notice of any alterations, corrections, or additions, will always be gratefully received by J. ALMON, bookseller and stationer, opposite Burlington-house, in Piccadilly, London.
